TUESDAY EVENING, AUGUST 4, 1903.

Pottery and Secreey. In the royal manufactory of pottery at Meissen, Saxony, the work was for-merly carried on with the utmost secrecy to prevent the processes from be-coming known elsewhere. The estab-lishment was a complete fortress, the portcullis of which was not raised day or night, no stranger being permitted to enter for any purpose whatever. Every workman, even the chief inspector, was sworn to silence. junction was formally repeated every month to the superior officers employed, while the workmen had con-stantly before their eyes in large let-ters the warning motto, "Be Secret Unto Death." It was well known that any person divulging the process would be imprisoned for life in the eastle of Koenigstein. Even the king himself Bell 'Phone 77. then he took strangers of distinction to visit the works was enjoined to seerecy. One of the foremen, however, escaped and assisted in establishing a manufactory in Vienna, from which the secrets spread all over Germany.

property and money reckiessly, taking his defeats with bluff good humor. On one occasion he staked the famous campanile bell of St. Paul's and lost it to his adversary, a Sir Miles Partridge, who insisted on his pound of flesh and removed the bell. Queen Mary sometimes resorted to cards and was seldom more lucky than her father, losing oc-casionally even her lace caps or coifs, which were worth a good sum. Charles II. loved basset and other round games and would play night after night and even on a Sunday till daylight, while singers entertained the company from a gallery. Even the cold William of Orange was a gambler and liked noth-ing better than to spend the day racing and the night playing cards.

George III. detested cards and disapproved of playing for money, an aversion and opinion in nowise shared by his son and successor, who is said to have lost more than £800,000 before he attained his majority.

Teach Language to Parrots

A queer business which is carried on with considerable success in certain parts of London is the teaching of lan guage to parrots. There are several persons engaged in this strange educational work. The country into which the bird is to be sent is first ascer-tained, and a sum of 10 shillings a week is then charged for a period varying from two to three months, ac cording to the capacity of the parrot. With a year's tuition the teacher guarantees a bird with a polyglot vocabu-lary chosen haphazard from four different languages.-Golden Penny.

Cockfighting In England.

For centuries cockfighting was encouraged in English schools. Fitzstein the twelfth century mentions it as an amusement of Londoners and that yearly at Shrovetide the boys of every school brought cocks to their schoolmasters, and all the forenoon was spent in school witnessing these birds fight. As late as 1790 the in-come of the schoolmaster of Applecross, in Ross-shire, was drawn partially from cockfight dues. Down to 1815 at least there was an annual exhibition of cockfighting at the Manchester gram-

Wig Dressing.

Not everybody who can dress a head of real hair becomingly can comb a wig with equal success. There is a special knack in wig dressing. In some shops where wax figures abound one or two of the employees are trained in that with their other duties at a slight increase of salary, but in most places the entire business is intrusted to pro fessional wig dressers.

Indiscretion. "Aren't the perfect trust and confi-dence engaged people have in each other perfectly beautiful!"
"Perfectly idiotic, I should say."

"Because when I was engaged I told my future wife all about my income and prospects, and now I can't spend a dollar on myself without her knowing about it."-New York Times.
